ough reform in the national system of taxation Senator Calder said that in the outlook toward normal conditions the second requisite was "freedom from pestiferous governmental interference" to which business has been subjected during and subsequent to the war.
"Those industries which have come into partnership with the public through the enjoyment of the right of eminent domain," he said, "as well as those industries which have clothed themselves with public interest and use, evidently must submit to some form of governmental regulation in order that the public may be protected. Yet experience has shown that the Government is not at present able to administer or operate these industries, and the danger is that they may be thrown back upon the Government at the expense of the people through general taxation or through poorer service.
"Through years of neglect American shipping so deteriorated that when the war needs called for adequate water transportation the nation was obliged to go to the expense of some three billion dollars to rehabilitate its shipping.
Now this shipping is idle, and even our inadequate to carry a peak load in event of a business revival.

"Our public utilities are in a similar condition. Of 44,000 miles of street railways in the country, 2,100 miles have been discontinued or junked; 5,000 miles are in the hands of the receivers on January 1, 1921, and 7,000 miles are in the hands of receivers at the present time.
"Our own barge canal, which cost the people of the State of New York some $150,000,000, during the freight congestion period last year is said to have carried less tonnage than it did in the pre-war days. This is due, it is said, to the fact that the necessary terminals are not available, and that capital is timid in the organization of barge lines, largely because of the fact that the Government itself is engaged in the business of carrying freight in competition with privately owned companies.

"Cheaper power to turn the wheels of industry will be one of the great elements in restoring efficiency, and yet water power comparatively near at hand remains undeveloped. Our engineering ability to handle these problems has been demonstrated beyond question. It is the timidity of capital, due, in all probability, to governmental interference, and to the greater attractiveness of speculative loans on the one hand and tax exempt securities on the other.

"It is conservatively estimated that as a nation we are in need of a million homes before we can be on a parity with conditions existing before the war.

This shortage has undoubtedly been caused by a series of unfortunate governmental interferences.
"In our journey back to a normal state of affairs what is going to be our policy as to these governmental inter-ferences, how far can organized business interests be encouraged and at what point must the Government step in in order to protect unorganized individuals and say "Thou shalt not"? I must confess this is a problem the solution of which is beyond me to define."

WAGE CUT ACCEPTED.
MOBILE, Ala., March 12.—The plumbers who went out on strike because wages were cut from $9 to $8, have returned to work at the latter scale. The plumbers will receive $8 a day in the future.
The master plumbers decreased the wages of the journeymen on the ground that prices for the cost of living had reduced materially over the prices charged during and immediately after the war.

it is sensational because we have deliberately and purposely made it sensational—it being our first great sale effort at $15. If you will cast your eyes about this page, you will see our artist's effort to interpret the new modes and its most engaging and winsome silhouette.

They are but pictures. You will rush into extravagant adjectives on seeing the actual and lovely dresses themselves!
